

CABP POSTER GIRL

At 89, Anne Puckridge is the poster girl for everything a CABP member could possibly be. She is a prodigious and self-motivated campaigner for pension parity.

In spite of vision problems, she steadfastly composes the most articulate letters and sends them off to anyone and everyone who might conceivably be able to influence our campaign. Her output is phenomenal and because of that more and more politicians, newspapers, commissions and even royalty – “I am sure the Royals are at least told of our letters, hence my persistence” – are kept keenly aware of the gross injustice that we continue to suffer at the hands of the UK Government.

Anne is grateful that the Old Age Security benefit she receives from the Canadian government has made her letter writing campaign easier: “Now I can afford the stamps!”
